

SEBASTIAN'S BIO IN A NUTSHELL

Sebastian Steinhauser is the CEO and Founder of Parcellly, a multi-award winning app technology company launched in 2014, which provides one of the most innovative and fastest growing click&collect solutions in the UK. Being responsible for the management and technological direction of Parcellly, he oversees our international team of 15 'parcel enthusiasts' across London, Manchester and Hamburg, driving through our vision of revolutionising the first and last mile delivery sector.

Before starting his entrepreneurial career, Sebastian spent 6+ years in London's City in corporate finance with some of Europe's leading financial institutions such as Santander Global Banking & Markets and Commerzbank AG. Prior to that, Sebastian gained experience in different strategic positions in Germany and France and obtained a triple accreditation in International Management from ESCP Europe, where he was nominated for the ESCP's Delegate Awards 2012 "Plus bel événement à destination des étudiants" and Delegate Awards 2014 - "Plus belle action pour les étudiants".

Spearheading innovation and thought leadership for the delivery logistics industry, he was voted 'Great British Service Industries Entrepreneur of the Year 2016' and continues to disrupt the current industry status quo.

In his spare time he enjoys water and endurance sports (Ironman, marathon, kite surfing, sailing), art, travelling and music.
